THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE DESERT

What Has Been Done in the Imperial Valley in Seven Years—Wonderful Development of the New County Below Sea Level

There are some things that men do learn through the experience of others; these are the facts along the line of material development, particularly such as relate to the conservation and development of material resources. Every day in this age of discovery makes it easier for those who come after to avoid the mistakes of the pioneers who blazed the way through natural obstacles, and to accomplish by obvious methods those things which but a few years ago would have been considered miracles. This fact must be borne in mind in reading this brief account of the remarkable results that have been wrought in one of the most unpromising parts of the "Great American Desert." otherwise the telling of it may not unnaturally be regarded as the rhapsody of the enthusiast, rather than an unbiased statement of historical facts.

The Editorial Association of Southern California paid a visit to the Imperial Valley, five years ago, at a time when it was a most unpromising Land of Promise and development had just begun, and last week its members went again to note progress. En route they spent two hours which is an example of development in a section that never was a desert, but stands guard in the mountain gateway connecting the fertile section on the western slope with the illimitable stretch of desert to the east and south. And although one may be in haste to reach the wonderland further on, the chronicles of the Empire Builders cannot afford to pass Beaumont by unnoted, particularly as a most appetizing repast, provided by the hospitable people of that growing city, awaits their appreciative discussion. At an elevation of 2400 feet, with Grayback looming skyward near at hand to the northward (a fringe of snow on its summit) and San Geronimo not far distant south, is Beaumont; an example of rapid development that is only matched by the oasis in the desert toward which we journey. The development of Beaumont began 23 years ago when some streets were laid out, a boom hotel built and a few long lines of eucalyptus trees planted. Then came the collapse of the great land boom, leaving Beaumont high and dry, a case of arrested development. Just about a year ago a wealthy seeker passed that way on the train bound westward; the natural beauty of the place and its wealth of possibilities attracted him; he laid over twenty-four hours or so, and shortly afterwards bought the town and some surrounding country. Then he began a systematic campaign for the purpose of making the resources of Beaumont known to the world at large, so successfully that the world immediately sat up and took notice; result—the revival of Beaumont. Over one hundred homes have been built with-in the past year; the work of development has just begun. The land is subdivided into ten and twenty-acre tracts. It is particularly adapted to the culture of apples, pears, cherries, grapes, generous samples of which were presented to the excursionists. The merits of Beaumont are many, but they might have been literally "wasted on the desert air" had it not been for a judicious advertising campaign for the purpose of making these merits known. As the chief promoter of Beaumont remarked in welcoming the editors: "Beaumont is a striking example of the efficacy of printers' ink!"

BEYOND THE DIVIDE.

Further down in the pass lies Banning on the sunny side of the slope, more mature, sedate, and apparently contentedly prosperous as indicated by its wholesome display of orchards, vineyards and comfortable homes. The track of the Southern Pacific leads rapidly downward to sea level and still lower until at Indio we are about 200 feet below Coachella comes next and in this Coachella valley are the towns of Thermal and Mecca, centers of the cantaloupe region hereabouts. For many miles the road follows the northern shore of the Salton sea, that almost mysterious body of water which covers 240 square miles where a few years ago was the very desolation of aridity with no drop of water in view. For nearly two years the waters of the Colorado flowed into this dry basin. It is estimated that, as it has no outlet, this inland sea will last ten years yet, before it is evaporated and lost in the atmosphere. At Imperial Junction, about 150 miles from Los Angeles, the Southern Pacific has built a branch road running directly southward from its main line, right through the heart of the great Imperial valley to Calexico on the line and on through Mexico, soon to be completed to Yuma. Imperial valley is 110 miles long by 40 miles wide, half in California and half in Mexico. Within this valley where eight years ago all was barren desert, there are now under cultivation from 150,000 to 200,000 acres, consisting principally of fields of alfalfa, barley and corn. This is estimated to be about one-half the acreage irrigable in Imperial county. Beginning a short distance north of Brawley, the cultivated area extends all the way southward to Calexico on the international line, a distance of over twenty miles. Ordinarily in a newly settled country one expects to find occasional or possibly frequent cultivated fields, but here in the Imperial valley the cultivated land appears to be almost one continuous stretch of productive acreage. The owner of the property may not reside upon it, but it is evident that his land is not allowed to lie fallow. Already the claim is made that this is "the largest irrigated district on earth." Brawley has a population of about 16,000 or more; from here was shipped the first carload of cantaloupes that left the valley, and just here let us say something about

The Cantaloupe Crop

In 1905 there were 45 carloads of cantaloupes shipped from Brawley; in 1906, 266 and in 1907, 346 carloads. The year 1907 was one which put a number of melon growers in the Imperial valley in an independent condition financially, swelling their bank accounts to most plethoric proportions. The returns made by some of the growers for that season are little short of phenomenal. From a published statement of half a dozen different producers we learn that their gross receipts ranged from $305 to $458 per acre. 1200 acres brought the growers $327,790. Probably no record of such a profitable season for the melons of the soil has ever before been written anywhere upon earth. But the publication of the fact of this phenomenally successful year, was followed in 1908 by the usual and inevitable result—over-production; which added to the diminished demand brought about by the prevailing financial stringency, made the season an unfortunate one to the melon growers of Imperial valley. There were 9000 acres planted to cantaloupes this year and 1953 carloads of melons were shipped. Yet it is estimated that this was not one-half of the crop that the phenomenal soil produced! The returns were so unfavorable that only a portion of the crop was gathered. But this does not mean failure for the Imperial valley farmer, since it is estimated that the value of products for the present year is nearly $3,000,000.

Some Figures.

In this connection some of the county assessor's figures for the current year are interesting: 63,936 acres in grain; 56,816 acres in alfalfa; 100,000 trees; 3000 turkeys; 3000 chickens; 8000 cattle; 82,250 hogs; 5000 horses; 20,000 sheep; 6000 stands of bees. Total valuation of county real estate $1,085,002; value of improvements $458,324. The total assessed value of property, including railroads, is $8,000,000, and the total actual value of real and personal property, exclusive of corporations, is $10,000,000. The population of the county is estimated to be about 20,000. There are within its limits twenty-five school districts, employing fifty-two teachers. One High School is in operation and two more High School districts are about to be established.

The Water Supply.

The valley is entirely dependent at present upon the Imperial canal system for water, which is brought in from the Colorado river, sixty miles to the eastward. The main canal taps the Colorado river in the northeastern corner of Mexico below Yuma, flowing westerly below the boundary line to a point a few miles east of Calexico, where it bears northward into the Imperial basin, the edge of which (sea-level) is found about Calexico from which point the dip is downward to Indio in the northwest corner of the desert, about fifty miles distant. There is no doubt about the abundance of water. The canals and smaller water ditches are numerous in evidence. There are nine mutual water companies in the valley, distributing water to their stockholders, on the basis of one share to the acre, at very reasonable rates. Three feet of water per acre costs the farmer about two dollars an acre per year. An analysis of the water shows that it possesses rich fertilizing properties which more than compensates when put upon the land for the substance taken out of the soil by the crops.

The Towns.

Brawley, El Centro, Calexico and Holtville have approximately about 1000 population for each; Imperial, the oldest of the towns, claims 2400 people. All are growing, wide-awake and prosperous. They are well supplied with electric light and power. Each has the usual proportion of churches and schools and each supports a newspaper, the one at Imperial being a daily. The most remarkable growth has been made at El Centro, four miles south of Imperial. This place is only three years old, being founded by W. F. Holt in 1906; became the county seat in 1907 and was incorporated as a city in 1908. The population is about 1200. Nearly all the business establishments are housed behind brick walls; has five hotels, one of them, the Oregon, a three-story brick just completed at a cost of $80,000. El Centro is building for the prosperous future which its people not unreasonably expect. Calexico, on the international boundary line, is a flourishing town in one of the choicest sections of the valley. Being situated as it is at one of the gateways of our sister republic, it is no doubt destined to grow in importance. Located here is the immense ranch belonging to the California and Mexico Land and Cattle company, consisting of about a million acres of fertile land, all of it on the southern side of the boundary except about 1000 acres at Calexico. The company makes a specialty of breeding blooded stock and has 3600 acres in alfalfa in addition to other crops. This property is owned by Gen. H. G. Otis and Harry Chandler of the Los Angeles Times, in company with two or three others. One of the show places of Calexico is the 3-acre ranch belonging to Fritz Kloke. It is a show place because of the pride of the owner which does not admit of anything being done that is not in accordance with the best methods, and the belief on the part of the owner's wife that the ornamental is sometimes as essential as the strictly useful. The ditches are kept perfectly clean along their borders which are lined with flourishing young cottonwoods that cast a grateful shade, the choicest roses and other flowers furnish attractive foliage, bloom and sweetest fragrance, and the horses and cattle stand in the fields of rank pasturage, making a scene of pastoral beauty. An unique attraction on this place is a curiously useful water wheel that lifts water from the canal to be carried to house and barn, furnishes power that turns the churns and incidentally catches fish.

Holtville is four years old and is located off from the rest of its sister towns, eleven miles east of El Centro with which it is united by a road branching off from the Imperial and Golf line. Pepper and palm trees have been planted here in great numbers and the great acreage of alfalfa about the town seems greener if possible than elsewhere. At Holtville is the power plant of the Holt Power Co. that supplies electricity to the valley. The power is generated by a fall which occurs in the canal here. Holtville has shipped since the first of June of this year 150 carloads of horses, worth about $1000 per acre.

Heber is one of the newest of the Imperial valley towns. It has a good hotel and is to get a bank and an agricultural college in the near future. It is surrounded by fine agricultural land and will doubtless grow as the rest of the towns have done.

There are two or three things notable about Imperial valley, aside from those mentioned. The people are as a rule a very high class of citizens in natural ability, energy and culture. They have been accustomed to having the comforts and conveniences of civilization and they have carried these all with them into the desert or have set about getting them energetically and at once. Local option is in force throughout the county. Every town named, except Heber, has its bank or banks; its newspaper, schools, churches, and these are all well supported. The climate is undoubtedly hot in summer. The government report for 1906 shows that at Imperial the mercury rose to over 100 degrees in eight months out of the twelve; the highest point being 115 degrees and the lowest 24. This latter figure indicates a temperature that means frost, which does sometimes occur. It is a providential dispensation, however, that the climate is not ideal, preventing as it does an influx of people which even the great Imperial valley could not assimilate.

Reference to this great valley on the part of the editors would be incomplete without an expression of appreciation for the unstinted hospitality shown them in every place they visited.

THANKSGIVING UNION SERVICE AT BAPTIST CHURCH.

The spirit of thanksgiving and Christianity was observed on Wednesday evening in union services conducted in the Baptist church, combining the congregations of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches. Rev. Moody, pastor, and Dr. S. Lawrence Ward of the Presbyterian church participated, and the address was given by Dr. J. F. Humphrey, new pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Psalm 147: "He hath not dealt so with any nation," furnished the text read by Rev. Fackenthal of St. Mark's Episcopal church. Fine orchestral music with chorus singing under direction of Earl Bishop Valentine was furnished by the Presbyterian choir, with tenor solo by Mr. Stanley Coates, and a soprano solo by Mrs. A. L. Bryant. The music was an especially enjoyable feature and the whole service, including the uplifting address, was something to be remembered by the large audience which practically filled the church.

AN EXCELLENT ADVERTISING MEDIUM.

Our issue for Prosperity Week consisted of nearly 1400 copies of an eight-page paper. The copies in excess of our regular list were distributed over the valley to non-subscribers and three hundred copies went to the Chamber of Commerce in Los Angeles. It was an excellent medium for our advertising patrons, enabling them to get into close touch with the home community and to reach many prospective newcomers. We believe it has already been followed by some direct results. It will be heard from to the advantage of the community and ourselves in the future.

We take pleasure in presenting to our readers this week a picture of our new Union High School as it will appear when complete. The ceremonies today in laying the corner stone mark an important era in the history of our educational institutions which deserves to be remembered. When the building at the corner of Fourth street and Brand boulevard was the subject of similar ceremonies in 1902, there were few among us who were optimistic enough to predict that the building would be inadequate to serve its purpose within the brief space of six years, yet such was the fact and the splendid structure that is today under way is evidence of the fact that as a community we have experienced a wonderful growth in more ways than one during this period. The sum of $60,000 has been authorized through a bond issue to be expended on the new building and its equipment, which will be increased by at least $15,000 by the sale of the property now in use on the corner of Fourth street. The new building was designed by Mr. Norman F. Marsh of Los Angeles, to be a three story structure of classic design in pressed brick. The dimensions are 90 by 130 feet and the cost will be about $50,000. One of the features will be an auditorium with a capacity for from 450 to 600 seats. Other details will be upon an up-to-date scale as every effort has been directed toward making this a structure of which our community may well be proud for many years to come. Work began upon the building on September 1st, the contract having been awarded to Mr. G. S. Bliss of Pasadena, and will be completed in about six months from that date.

An ordinance regulating the planting of trees or shrubbery in the public parks, street or avenues and providing for the manner of selection thereof, passed first and second reading and referred to Board of Public Works.

On motion it was decided that the Board meet in committee of the whole Monday evening, Nov. 30th, to take up the matter of assessment on Brand boulevard, with a committee of five citizens to be selected by the property owners interested. Adjournment was then made to Saturday, Nov. 28th, at 10 a. m. for the purpose of appointing a building inspector.

The "Tropico Coons" give their unique performance in Odd Fellows hall tonight and our people will have an opportunity to see the show, which turned Tropico upside down a few weeks ago. It is the only original aggregation of beauty and talent that appeared upon that occasion and will, no doubt, be well patronized by Glendale. It is understood that the local jokes will be toned down and fitted anew to suit the occasion and environment.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. McGowan of Dawson City are spending Thanksgiving vacation with their niece, Miss McLean.

Mr. Moyses was one of the judges at the debate which took place Nov. 26th between Covina and Santa Ana.

Saturday last the boys basketball team played San Fernando at Glendale the result being about as usual, Glendale 43, Fernando 10.

The lineup was: Taylor, Stone, Emery, forwards; Walton, center; Gould and Emery, forwards.

On the 26th the boys basketball team played the Harvard school in Los Angeles, in a practice game, winning by a score of 45 to 13. Taylor played an excellent game. As Glendale won the championship of the western division of the Basketball League, they will play the winner of the eastern division Dec. 5th, at Alhambra.

On Thanksgiving day the baseball team played the Burbank nine at the Glendale diamond.

TAXES.

Tax payers are reminded that the first half of county taxes become delinquent at 6 p. m. next Monday, after which time if unpaid 15 per cent. is added. Glendale city taxes will be delinquent on the last Monday in December.

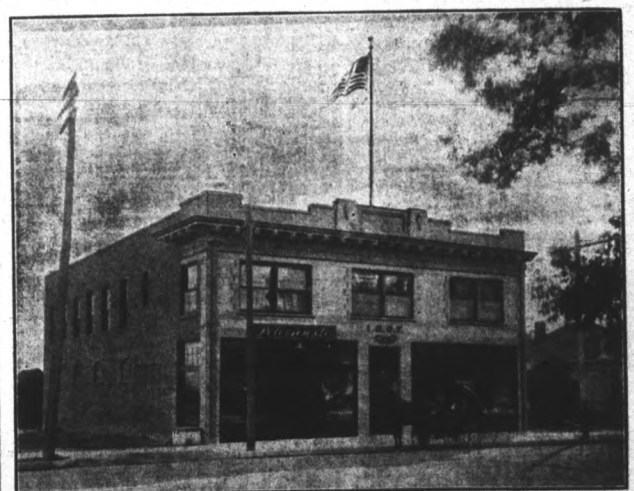

MRS. MOODY ENTERTAINS.

Ladies identified with the First Baptist church enjoyed a reception on Tuesday afternoon at the home of the pastor, Rev. Moody on Louise street. Mrs. Moody was assisted by Mrs. Brown of Sixth street and Mrs. Lockwood of Burbank. The home was resplendent in pink chrysanthemums, the gift of Mrs. Simeon Grant. Graceful peppers artistically employed supplied the greenery.

Among the pleasant things provided for entertainment were several readings, all appropriate to Thanksgiving. Refreshments served were reasonable, consisting of hot coffee, pumpkin pie, etc. Little Frank Moody dispensed old-fashioned doughnuts from his wheelbarrow. Those entertained were members of the Aid Society, each of whom had been asked to invite two friends. There were about sixty present. Souvenirs were presented upon departure of guests.

FRIDAY MUSICAL.

The pupils of Miss Lillian Ward gave a nice little musicale at her home on Third street at three o'clock on Friday afternoon. Parents of pupils and a few friends composed the appreciative audience, who generously endorsed the well-prepared numbers.

THE HURTT BLOCK.

The above cut is a representation of the first two story brick block erected in Glendale west of Brand boulevard, and as such deserves more than passing notice. It is located on the south side of Fourth street a short block west of Glendale avenue, cornering on an alley. The dimensions are fifty by seventy-five feet. The large plate glass windows, the unusual depth of the cornice and the skillful use of projecting pressed brick, two colors of which are worked into the front design, make a frontage of unusual attractiveness. The lower story is divided into two large store rooms separated by a hall leading to the upper floor. Cement floors are a feature of the store rooms, which, in connection with plastered walls, render the building a good fire risk. The second story is given up to offices in front, while the rear is occupied by a fine hall 48 by 42 with a beautifully polished hardwood dancing floor. This hall is leased by the Odd Fellows and is proving its popularity by being in use nearly every evening. Mr. L. H. Hurtt, the proprietor, has spared no expense in fitting up the building. He has also other property in Glendale and is deserving of great credit for being willing to back up his confidence in the future importance of our city by such substantial evidence as this block affords. Mr. Paul H. Tuttle is the architect.

GLENDAL, CAL., NOVEMBER 28, 1908

Scipio Craig, veteran owner and editor of the Redlands Citigraph, died on Monday of last week. He passed away almost literally in the editorial harness and the Citigraph dies with him, as he wished. He was a unique character and a force for good. Peace to his ashes.

South Pasadena, through an error in the office of the county auditor in charging up a bond issue of $150,000 to that city instead of to Pasadena, will have to pay a special tax rate which is higher by 22 cents on the hundred than it should be. Meanwhile Pasadena needs the money for its schools, while South Pasadena has the surplus and no particular use for it.

BIBLE STUDY CLUB.

Beginning Dec. 6th and continuing throughout the year, we shall publish every week a series of questions on the International Sunday School Lesson, prepared by Rev. Dr. Linscott. These lessons being in the form of questions only, cannot possibly be construed as being sectarian. Their object is to encourage study of the Bible and in that direction we believe that teachers and students alike will find them invaluable.

The ladies of the Tuesday Afternoon Club at their last meeting extended to the GLENDAL NEWS, by unanimous vote, the thanks of the organization for the good work done on the Club's Year book, the low price charged for the work and for the liberal space accorded the club proceedings.

MRS. G. E. WILLIAMS,
Secretary Pro Tem.

(The appreciation expressed above is received with pleasure and our editorial hat is doffed in token of the same.—Ed.)

Not only was Governor Hughes triumphantly re-elected in New York, after having beaten the machine in his own party, but five of the eight state senators who opposed him and his anti-race track gambling law, failed of re-nomination, and one of the three who were renominated was beaten at the polls. Machines do not always triumph in politics, as will probably be demonstrated in California when another election occurs in this machine ruled commonwealth.

A CRITIC CONVERTED.

An English critic, Mr. G. K. Chesterton, has written a book on orthodoxy, which, in view of the confession that he makes of his own personal experience in making a study of Christianity, and of the conclusion he arrives at, is a work of great interest in this day when skepticism and materialism seem to be on the increase. The author tells of his study of Herbert Spencer, Huxley, Bradlough, Ingersoll and other writers, agnostic and infidel, upon the subject of Christianity. He only read non-Christian and anti-Christian works, and pondering over them he began to "doubt their doubts." The contradictions embodied in these works of the opponents of Christianity, were the real cause in the end of the conclusion at which he arrives that "Christianity is the truth."

He finds that it is attacked because it is too militant—fighting too much, and too peaceful and non-resistant; certain critics attacked it because of its "inhuman gloom," while others asserted that it was "childishly optimistic;" one called it a nightmare, another a fool's paradise, etc.

"People have fallen into the foolish habit of speaking of orthodoxy as something heavy, humdrum and safe. There never was anything so perilous and exciting as orthodoxy. It was sanity, and to be sane is more dramatic than to be mad." The conclusion which he reaches is as follows: "It is always simple to fall; there are an infinity of angles at which one falls, only one at which one stands. To have fallen into anyone of the fads from Gnosticism to Christian Science would indeed have been obvious and tame. But to have avoided them all has been one whirling adventure; and in my vision the heavenly chariot flies thundering through the ages, the dull heresies sprawling and prostrate, the wild truth reeling but erect."

THANKSGIVING.

In accordance with long established custom, we have celebrated another national day of Thanksgiving. One day in the year is certainly not too much to set apart for this purpose. While it is true that every day should call forth from all of us, some form of expression for favors enjoyed, there is yet that limitation in our human nature that makes it easy for us to forget, and special seasons which will remind us of our obligations to the Creator of all and to our fellow men, are appropriate and of great service. Because we enjoy so generally the "every-day blessings" of life, we accept them as a matter of course and fail to appropriate them. It is a matter that should be occasion of thankfulness to every human being, that we are permitted to live in an age of such wonderful achievements, that is crowded so full of opportunities. That there are ever among us individual cases in which life by some unfortunate circumstance seems to be made not worth the living, does not at all disprove our assertion that the very fact of existence in this age of the world's history is something that should cause us all to be thankful for the privilege of living, and under such circumstances working out our destiny.

It is rather popular at the present time to indulge in criticism of those in authority, but there are so many facts in relation to our national life, so many of the blessings of government which we are enjoying from day to day, without inquiring from whence they come, or giving a thought to the human power behind the intricate machinery of government, that we should pause sometimes to draw a long breath and be thankful that the great majority of the men who are entrusted with authority are not recreant to their trust but are doing their duty at their various posts on the ship of state which after all is riding magnificently along the waves of success and avoiding the perils which would soon engulf us if the crew were not as a whole doing their duty well.

THE RELIGION OF THE PRESIDENT-ELECT.

President Roosevelt, who was accused during the late presidential campaign, with more or less justice, of rushing into controversy apparently just for the love of conflict, is capable of exercising proper restraint and a fine discretion even in cases where he is intensely in earnest, as for instance in the letter written since the election in regard to Mr. Taft's religious views. Replying to one correspondent of many upon the same subject, he says: "I received many such letters as yours during the campaign expressing dissatisfaction with Mr. Taft on religious grounds, some of them on the ground that he is a Unitarian and others on the ground that he is suspected to be in sympathy with the Catholics. I did not answer any of these letters during the campaign, because I regarded it as an outrage even to agitate such a question as a man's religious convictions with the purpose of influencing a political election."

If space permitted we should be glad to quote all of this excellent letter, but will give only a few extracts: "You ask that Mr. Taft let the world know what his religious belief is. This is purely his own private matter between him and his maker. Discrimination against the holder of one faith means retaliatory discrimination against men of other faiths. . . . is an outrage against that liberty of conscience which is one of the foundations of American life. . . . I do not for one moment believe that the mass of our fellow citizens, or that any considerable number of them can be influenced by such narrow bigotry as to refuse to vote for any thoroughly upright and fit man because he happens to have a particular creed. . . . I believe that this republic will endure for many centuries. If so, there will be doubtless among its presidents, Protestants and Catholics and very probably at some time, Jews."

THE PACIFIC ELECTRIC AND BRAND BOULEVARD.

It now transpires that the expense for the improvement of Brand boulevard which is now being made, will have to be borne entirely by the abutting property, excluding the railroad company. When the improvement of the boulevard was first suggested, it was the opinion of City Attorney Baker, which was naturally accepted by our other city officials, that the railroad company would have to pay its proportionate share of the expense. This opinion, however, has since been proven erroneous, a supreme court decision to that effect having been given in a similar case in another city. Property owners along that portion of the boulevard which is being improved, are naturally disappointed in finding that the expense is to be heavier than they anticipated. The law being as it is, however, there is an excellent opportunity given the railroad company here to do the right and the graceful thing, by paying voluntarily their proportion of the expense of this improvement. The company possesses a valuable right of way which is constantly increasing in value. The advantage to the company of having the street improved is certainly greater than that which accrues to any other individual property owner along the street and it would seem that Mr. Huntington and his associates do not need to take any advantage of a weakness in the law which gives them, if they choose to accept it, something for nothing. An excellent opportunity exists here for the Pacific Electric people to show that they have a real and abiding interest in Glendale; that they are not in business here merely to get everything possible out of the community, but to work with us and bear with us the burden of the upbuilding of our city and community.

BUSINESS AND CONFIDENCE.

The New York World, which supported Mr. Bryan in the recent campaign, published in its Sunday edition a week or so ago a remarkable statement showing in detail the "Revival of Industry," following immediately upon the announcement of the result of the election. It published nine columns of dispatches from various points throughout the country showing great activity and indicating unmistakably the beginning of an era of great prosperity.

The revival of confidence exceeds the fondest expectations, for already there is a complaint in more than one quarter of the lack of labor. The same thing occurred, although in a less remarkable degree, immediately after the election of McKinley in 1896. These object lessons should certainly educate the American people, and we believe they are being so educated. He is unwise, who sneers at and belittles the value of "confidence," in business affairs. It is the one essential and vital element that must always be reckoned upon and which should be courted in every legitimate way. It is the foundation-stone of the financial and industrial system. No system of finance can be forced upon the people unless they can first be induced to have confidence in it, and this essential is always persistently overlooked by the advocates of "flat" money schemes. The government is not all powerful in the matter; it is in fact impotent when not supported by the people. This is not a theory but an historical fact. An illustration of it was found on the Pacific Coast during and for several years following the civil war. In the Eastern states, the "greenback" was accepted and passed current as a matter of course. Its value was variable, measured by purchasing power, but it served its purpose. On this coast, however, the people would have nothing to do with it, except to discount it on a gold basis. The traveler coming into California from the East during that time, had to hunt up a broker's office upon arrival and exchange his paper money for gold and silver. He could not help himself; merchants, hotelkeepers and others would simply refuse to accept the greenback, notwithstanding its "legal tender" backing. The money question (as to kind and standard) did not figure in the recent contest, but the question of confidence was just as clearly involved as though a change of standards had been the issue. The element of uncertainty hung principally about the tariff question. A few industries, such as the manufacture of tinplate, had been actually created by the present protective tariff, and many others are dependent very largely upon it. Aside from all questions as to whether the tariff is right or wrong, the fact that manufacturers and other employers of labor believed that their business interests were threatened, was sufficient reason for taking their state of mind into consideration.

The result of the election has satisfied capitalists that there will be no radical change in our tariff system for four years to come, and it is therefore a natural result that mills should be opened and work deferred should now be resumed. There is nothing mysterious about this return of confidence, it is a simple working out of one of the primary elements of human nature.

THANKSGIVING OBSERVED IN THE SCHOOLS.

Fine Art Displayed at Fourth Street School—West Glendale Does Itself Proud.

Visitors entering the various rooms of the Fourth Street Grammar school were at once impressed with the holiday appearance brought about with a gay display of seasonable blossoms and bright autumn leaves, on Wednesday afternoon. Best of all were the excellent board drawings portraying the Thanksgiving season, all the work well executed by pupils of the various grades. Pumpkins, fruits and turkeys were remarkably well drawn and pictures of pilgrims, the Mayflower and spinning wheels all called for praise. Perhaps the most noticeable of the especially good work were a few charcoal drawings executed by pupils of the Eighth grade, consisting of landscapes drawn with true artistic feeling. In each of the rooms appropriate programs delighted the visitors and the scholars as well. Readings and bright rollicking songs of the season, were given, showing good preparation and training. It is the intention of this school to give a splendid entertainment and an exhibit at Christmas time, preparations for which are already under way under direction of Mrs. Mary Ryan, principal, and Mrs. Anderson, director of music and drawing.

At the West Glendale school things were doing to celebrate the first Thanksgiving in the handsome new school and to help faculty and happy pupils to adequately express their thanks. Seventy people gathered in the big lower hall and all together they enjoyed the splendid readings and musical numbers provided, all along the good Thanksgiving theme. The sweet music from the violin of Julius Kranz and the graceful figures of the Spanish dance given by Viola Yorba and Ernesto Martinez, the chorus singing were all of unquestioned quality and interest.

Mrs. McMullen sang a solo and Mrs. Gibson rendered an instrumental number. The visit through the rooms disclosed a fine exhibit of manual training work, and, what excited special and favorable comment the written work of all the grades. The drawing done, especially by the upper grades, was much admired.

Decorations were great yellow pumpkins, and cornstalks massed about in effective display, combined with a great many "mums and seasonable blossoms, the whole planned and given under the supervision of the principal, Mrs. F. G. Taylor, and the faculty. Enthusiasm and the spirit of true thankfulness marked the affair an undoubted success.

Plans are already well under way for an auspicious and appropriate opening of the new Grammar school and for the Christmas celebration there, under the new principal, Miss Ida M. Waite, assisted by the faculty of that school and several of the mothers of pupils who are to attend there. Dates will be published later.

TRUE THANKSGIVING FOR THE TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Members and guests of the Tuesday Afternoon club enjoyed thoroughly the pleasant Thanksgiving observance arranged by the hostesses of the day, Mrs. Minnie Newton, of Casa Romona, North Glendale, Mrs. May F. Church, Mrs. Ada W. Leavitt, Mrs. Ella C. Wham and Mrs. Josephine Bryant. A short business session preceded the program, which was opened by a musical number rendered by Mrs. Elizabeth Moyse and Mrs. Emma Burket. The event of the day was the splendid address on "American Poetry" so ably presented by Miss Cora Hickman that she was accorded, at the close of her remarks of absorbing interest, a rising vote of thanks. There followed a happy hour when hot coffee and delicious cakes were served from the table, beautiful in graceful arrangement of red geraniums and trailing smilax. The affair took place on Tuesday afternoon in the Odd Fellows' Hall.

MR. AND MRS. JOHNSTON PRESENT AT SWELL DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Johnston, recently of Chicago, on Sunday entertained with an elaborately appointed dinner of eight courses at Wood's hotel, with such pleasant accessories as many lights, trailing greenery and "Golden Gate" mums, great shaggy specimens that were much admired. Each course served was a distinct triumph by itself and the aggregation, if not a dream, probably caused them; for it was a feast to be remembered because of excellence of preparation, and appointment. Twenty-two sat down to the long table, including besides the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Goss and William Goss, Mr. and Mrs. E. U. Emery and son, Owen; Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Smith and son, Harold; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Burket, Mr. and Mrs. Brown of Los Angeles, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Bryant, Mrs. P. J. Ferguson and Miss Charlotte Haisdel.

CORNER-STONE CEREMONIES.

The ceremony of laying the corner-stone of the new High School building will take place at 2:30 this afternoon. The Masonic Order will officiate. County Superintendent of Schools Mark Keppel will give the opening address. Mr. A. W. Collins, president of the Board of Trustees, will present the trowel, and Grand Master Oscar Lawler will make the response. The oration of the day will be delivered by Rev. Hugh E. Walker. Mr. Walker and Supr. Keppel both took part in the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the original building.

PLANT TREES

Rancher Makes Some Good Suggestions—Get Busy

Mr. Editor: Since the city forester was out here from Los Angeles and talked about a broad boulevard for Glendale we are hearing considerable about that proposition. The writer thinks that 100 or 200 feet wide for a street seems like a good bit of land to lie idle and those of us who have pumpkin and potato patches along the line would realize some less on these crops. Still in going about a good bit in large cities the writer has noticed that it ain't the pumpkin and potato sections of the cities where land sells for the biggest money. In fact he has always taken notice that those streets which are the widest and have the most trees and sometimes have parks in front of them, are the streets where the biggest houses are and the property sells high. So Mr. Editor, after carefully thinking the matter over in a practical way it does seem as though those of us who own land would make more by giving a good slice for a wide street than by raising pumpkins and potatoes on it or selling it off in town lots without the wide street, because folks what have money seem to like to build where there are plenty of trees. Of course they're safer from fire with a lot of trees sown in front of their houses, and when they put such a pile of money into them they've got to look out for such things. San Francisco is thinking about that proposition and San Francisco has had a good hard experience to profit by and besides, Mr. Editor, we old fellows that have lived kind of secluded for a good spell would sort of enjoy a whole raft of trees out in front. It would seem more homelike and a mighty sight cooler in summer, too, and now, Mr. Editor, that this subject has been opened up, it might be of considerable interest to hear from some of those parties interested on those streets that haven't yet got paving stones laid down on them, as to just how much land they'd be willing to give towards such a proposition, and of course the street that would give the most and could be made the widest ought in all justice and common sense to have the wide street. In conclusion the writer would like to suggest that the parties willing to give land towards this enterprise make it known through the columns of your valuable paper, as it is a matter of interest to the community at large.

Yours respectfully,

RANCHER.

A BROAD BOULEVARD FOR GLENDALE

Why should Glendale not have a fine, broad, parked boulevard? Nothing affects the value and beauty of a place so much as its public highways, hence, in laying out a new city the first thing to be done is to lay out its streets, and the desirability of lots is in proportion to the width of those streets.

In Glendale we should build for the future. Now is the wise and propitious time to plan our streets, lights, shade, parks, sewerage system and all the necessary accessories to a progressive and up-to-date city. Money is often fruitlessly expended, and unnecessary mistakes made, in a new city because the people are not united in demanding the best. Let us not be satisfied with anything mediocre, and especially let us grasp the opportunities already within our reach and utilize them. Here we have a boulevard already studded with stately trees. Such a drive put in proper condition and intelligently planted throughout its length, at least through our city, would prove one of the greatest attractions. Already this popular Verdugo road, winding through the hills, is a popular thoroughfare for Los Angeles people, as it is undoubtedly one of the most charming of the many beautiful drives in this vicinity, and the point, called by the Mexicans "the door of heaven," which gives the first glimpse of this enchanting valley stretching for miles in the distance, is truly a reminder of Paradise.

We have read of proposed broad, shaded boulevards to be run out into the country in conjunction with some of the railway lines of Los Angeles. Why should not Glendale, in her foundation work, recognize the advantage of such an adjunct to our city's popularity and prosperity, and construct such a boulevard, or more than one such? In the growth of twenty years in our trees we have a wealth which millions cannot create. This it is in part that makes this place particularly attractive to the eastern tourist who comes to this section of the state, the greatest lack of which is forests and trees, which have been ruthlessly destroyed. Let us enhance and develop every desirable feature of our city. On the west side money is doing much in the construction of a handsome depot, the building of splendid streets, and the erection of imposing electric light-capped pillars at the street corners, but money cannot create stately eucalyptus trees such as Somerset Farm presents, or beautiful cedars such as the Lukens orange grove is bordered with. These are an inheritance of the past decades, upon the possession of which we may congratulate ourselves.

With the essential features of trees already supplied, a magnificent boulevard at no far-off day is no idle dream. By broadening Verdugo road and preserving the trees down the center, one side could be used for driving, etc., and the other for the street railway if so decided. The increased value of property abutting on such a thoroughfare would many times repay the land owners for the gift of the necessary right of way.

After a trip over the beautiful Pacific Electric road to Glendale, a ride by rail or otherwise over such a boulevard as has been hinted at to delightful Verdugo Park would give the tourist additional evidence of the expense, scenic beauty and possibilities of this section, and speak of the culture, intelligence and forethought of our citizens.—L. S. W.

THE NEW LEARNING.

They taught him how to hemstitch, and they taught him how to sing. And how to make a basket out of variegated string. And how to fold a paper so he wouldn't hurt his thumb— They taught a lot to Bertie, but he couldn't do a sum.

They taught him how to mold the head of Hercules in clay.

And how to tell the difference 'twixt the bluebird and the jay.

And how to sketch a horse in a little picture frame—

But, strangely, they forgot to teach him how to spell his name.

Now, Bertie's pa was crabbed; and he went, one day, to find

What 'twas they did to make his son so backward in the mind.

"I don't want Bertie wrecked," he cried, in temper far from cool.

"I want him educated!" So he took him out of school.

—From Jersey Jingles, by Leonard H. Robbins.

THE GOOD WORK BEING DONE IN LOS ANGELES BY THE BETHLEHEM INSTITUTION PRAC-TICAL PHILANTHROPY.

There is a great work being carried on in Los Angeles at the Bethlehem Institutions that should be of interest to every person who has the welfare of humanity at heart. This work is not a charity in the old sense of the term—the patronizing reaching down from above to the humiliated recipients down below. There is no reaching down but a reaching out—quite a different thing. The Bethlehem movement is toward the leveling up of humanity. The Bethlehem idea is to minister to the physical as well as the spiritual; to preach the gospel of a common brotherhood in helpful deeds and not in fruitless words.

To attempt to estimate the good accomplished by Bethlehem in the fifteen years of its existence, most of which time it has been under the guidance of the present superintendent, Rev. Dana Bartlett, would be impossible. As well try to count the circling waves made by the pebble dropped into a placid lake. Every good thought sets up endless vibrations for good; the influence of one good deed reaches around the world. Who then can tell what Bethlehem has wrought in its years of good doing?

What was known as the Bethlehem Institutions consist of three separate establishments, all situated in the most crowded quarter of the city of Los Angeles—the Eighth ward, where scarlet vice flaunts her trade and poverty hides its rags and dirt in crumbling shacks.

The mother house at 510 Vignes street is in the midst of the foreign settlement, a constantly increasing element in the city's population. In a radius of several blocks in this thickly crowded quarter, it is possible not to meet a single person speaking the English language. Russians, Japanese, Armenians, Greeks, Italians and Mexicans—these are the neighbors of Bethlehem, and among these there is much work to be done. To reach them in the right way, to educate them to high standards of living and to help them to become good citizens—these are a few of the things embraced in the Bethlehem plan. Such a work means immeasurable benefit to the city and to the state and the country at large. Like most of the immigrants that come to America, these foreign residents are very ignorant. They have no idea as a rule, what it means to exercise the franchise. Five years residence in this country gives them the right to vote and have a voice in the making of our laws and the election of our legislators. It must be apparent that it is very important that they are taught the sacred responsibilities of exercising such a right. If no one else takes the trouble to teach them good citizenship the saloon forces are sure to teach them the other kind. It is generally conceded that the manipulation of the slum vote by corrupt politicians is one of the greatest menaces to good government in this country.

It was the realization of this truth that actuated Rev. Dana Bartlett when he took up as part of the Bethlehem work the task of training the poor foreign residents. Though there are many good people in Los Angeles, no one else cared to undertake it. It is a slow, laborious task. There are no brilliant rewards; the results are not showy. It is merely pioneer work and for that the returns will be greatest in the years to come. Before the foreigners can understand their civic rights and duties they have to be taught our language, and this is one of the most important branches of the Bethlehem work. Every night you see them, classes of Italians, Armenians, Greeks and Mexicans, and Russian youths, gathered in the large rooms where volunteer teachers instruct them from the hours of 7 till 9. Once a week they are given illustrated lectures on the history of America by Mr. Bartlett through interpreters in the different languages.

This is just one department of the Bethlehem Institutions. It would take a volume to tell of the other activities carried on here and at the two branches, all having the object social service and human uplift.

There is the free dispensary, where 1846 patients have been treated in the last six months. Dr. Sherwin Gibbons and Dr. E. M. Lazard give their services and one of the city district nurses helps minister to the poor, whose sufferings otherwise would not be alleviated. There is the man's hotel and lunch counter. Rooms are rented as low as $1.00 a week and meals can be had from five cents up. If a man asks for shelter and cannot pay, he is taken in and work is secured for him. No body is turned away and all classes are helped. The family of Mr. Bartlett lives in one part of the main building, where three of his five daughters were born. To the women of the neighborhood Mrs. Bartlett is a helpful friend and there is some one coming to her at nearly every hour of the day for sympathy, advice, consolation and material assistance.

The stand Bethlehem is taking against the encroachment of the slum is probably the greatest good that can be credited to it. In other cities, that evil came about unconsciously and gradually until it was firmly established. In Los Angeles, the approaching danger has been pointed out by Dr. Bartlett repeatedly in the past few years and the citizens are now so enlightened that it is not likely that there will ever be here that menace to health and morals of a congested population in any part of town.

Los Angeles, Nov. 13, 1908.

THE PASSING OF THE PIONEER.

R. R. Haines, one of the old-timers in Los Angeles, passed away the other day at the ripe age of 83 years. Until the influx of people that were turned this way by the completion of the Southern Pacific railroad through to a connection with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe at Danling, N. M., in 1880, "Commodore" Haines, as he was familiarly known, was one of the best known citizens of Los Angeles and indeed for many years thereafter, notwithstanding the rapid increase in the population, he was a familiar figure known to nearly every patron of the telegraph in that city. For he was a pioneer in the telegraph service and a history of the growth of that business on the Pacific Coast would be incomplete if it failed to accord to Mr. Haines a conspicuous place. He constructed telegraph lines from Arizona to Puget Sound and after his active service in construction was completed, he acted for many years in the capacity of manager of the Western Union and later of the Postal Telegraph company. He was one of the first telegraphers of the country who acquired the art of reading by "sound," becoming an operator in 1849 at Hallowell, Maine. At one time he was candidate on the Democratic and Populist tickets for county treasurer in Los Angeles and afterwards joined the Prohibition party. For thirty years the writer has known Mr. Haines, and during all that time he was a firm believer in Los Angeles and in that brilliant future which he predicted for it, which he lived to see realized at least in part and which he so ably assisted to upbuild. He had a genial, kindly nature; the world is a loser by his taking off, but much of the good that he has done lives after him.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

Forester Harper of Los Angeles laid out an ambitious program before the ladies of the Tuesday Afternoon club, when he delivered an address before them recently. But although it is easy to see reasons enough for saying that the wide avenues with their spacious parkways, the long lines of well-kept shade trees, the small parks and the large ones, are difficult to attain, it will not do to think of it as impossible. The accomplishment of the things necessary to make a "City Beautiful," is a difficult problem, but not impossible of solution. It means a campaign of education, and a constant effort on the part of just such an organization as this ladies' club, to bring it about; but if persevered in it is attainable. Much can be accomplished by organized and persistent effort. In every street, there should be at least one enthusiastic worker to a block, who will see to it that in their particular section, there is uniformity in street tree planting. Perhaps this should be the one thing towards the accomplishment of which all energies should be directed for a while. Concentrated effort is the thing that counts. A great deal of effort is wasted for lack of direction, but constant effort will work miracles. Nature has been lavish in her gifts to us, but nature unassisted or unrestrained will make a wilderness of city streets, and her forces should be bent to our purpose. "All things come to him who waits," is a good enough motto to serve as an excuse for doing nothing, but "all things come to him who strives," is a better one for this age of great accomplishments.

Subscribers will save us some trouble and enable us to make our creditors happier if they will call around and pay up their subscriptions to the NEWS. Newcomers are reminded that this paper represents every section of our valley and is worth more than we ask for it—they should subscribe at once.

The sale of Thanksgiving eatables at the NEWS office last Wednesday by the ladies of St. Marks was a success, although it would have been more so had they been able to supply the demand. As it was, several would-be patrons got in too late to supply themselves with specimens of the cooking and baking by the ladies contributing to the affair.

When you have anything to be done in the printing line, come around to the office and get figures and see specimens of our work. You do not need to go away from home for a first-class job at a fair price.

By the clever manipulation of several of Mr. Mason's friends he was conducted to the hall and upon entering the lights having been turned off, observed a huge cake in the center of the stage, supporting just twenty-five lighted candles. The motif of the occasion then dawned upon Mr. Mason who was so overcome that words failed him, but as there were a number of ladies present his silence was scarcely observed. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mason, Mr. and Mrs. George Sears, Mr. and Mrs. John Reich, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Aney, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Reich, Misses Pearl Sears, R. Jackson, Myrtle Webb, Maude Lund, Belle Mason, R. L. Crouch, Michael Le Grande, Mary Lund, Mary Crouch, Margaret Sears, Lilly Smith, Mary Jackson and R. Shultz. Messrs. Will Webb, John Fishel, F. R. TROPICO SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.

Not only the seating capacity was taxed, but standing room was at a premium at G. A. R. hall Monday evening, when Mrs. Martha McClure, principal of the Tropico Grammar school, assisted by her efficient corps of teachers, presented the best school entertainment that has been given here the past few years. Prof. E. B. Valentine assisted on the program by rendering several violin solos in that finished manner that proclaimed Mr. Valentine the finest violinist who has ever appeared before an audience here.

Miss Crystal Waters, one of the instructors in the school, who possesses not only a highly cultivated but sweet, resonant soprano voice, pleased the audience with two vocal numbers.

Miss Perry gave two well received readings.

The pupils from Miss Clay's primary room gave "Little Folks' Thanksgiving." The twelve little people who participated were led by a tiny Japanese girl in their march and recitation.

Pupils from Miss Borthick's room gave an interesting song and pantomime.

Miss Merrell's pupils gave the cycle of songs in such a charming manner that an encore was forthcoming.

The piece de resistance of the evening, among the pupils, was "A Colonial Reception." The dignified and graceful manner in which this was presented won many a merited applause. The cast was as follows:

COLONIAL RECEPTION.

Massachusetts.....Chas. Schick
Rhode Island.....Katherine Hobbs
Virginia.....Leona Estelle
Sambo, Virginia's page.....Mabel Evans

New York.....Harwood Collins
Maryland.....Luna Ribben
North Carolina.....Will Marple

South Carolina.....Nina Clover
Georgia.....Marjorie Storer
Pennsylvania.....Ray Spradlin

Sailors.....Pete Carpi, Channing Follette, Maurice Burke.

Indians.....Donald Murray, Roy Spradlin, Harvey Fishel, Walter Fishel, Maids.....Marguerite Robinson, Lela Westphalen.

Virginia Reel was danced by Masters George Mickle and Raymond Barker, Colonial gentlemen, Chas. Schick, Harry Chandler, and Misses Katherine Hobbs, Mabel Evans, Leona Scalle and Marjorie Storer.

One of the most interesting numbers on the program was a mandolin duet by Masters Charles Schick and Raymond Barker, with Miss Catherine Hobbs, accompanist. Just as Master Charles had reached the climax and had rendered a difficult measure, one of the strings to his mandolin snapped in twain; but this manly lad not for one moment was perplexed, but resumed playing with the air of an old master, calling to mind the precedent related of Paganini, the noted violinist, who upon one occasion snapped all the strings of his violin but one, upon which he continued the musical number he was giving.
